BIRTHDAY GREETING

Western Union Doing Its Share To Make President's Ball a Success

Bertram A. Gardner, local manager, today announced that Western Union has placed its nationwide system of telegraph offices at the disposal of the President's Birthday Ball Committee for receiving 25 cents from each person who places his signature on the following multiple signature birthday greeting.

"Happy Birthday, Mr. President. I am proud to know that the cost of sending this greeting will help in the great fight against infantile paralysis, to which you have given your leadership and loaned your birthday."

Signatures from every city, town and hamlet will be mailed to New York, where they will be bound into what probably will be the greatest birthday greeting in history. One hundred percent of the money will be turned over to the National Birthday Ball Committee, which will arrange for the proper credit for each community.

FAST UNDERTAKING

Commission Recommends That Work Start At Once On Quoddy Project

The Quoddy tidewater electric power project investigating commission, Gov. Brann announced Thursday has recommended that construction of the vast undertaking be started at once as a Federal project.

The commission, appointed in July, 1934, by the Governor at the suggestion of President Roosevelt, who said the commission's report would have a "sympathetic ear in Washington," came to two conclusions about the $47,000,000 proposal to harness the abnormal tides between Eastport and Lubec to generate "cheap" electricity. They were:

"First, that the Quoddy project can only be constructed at this time as a Federal project; and

"Second, as a Federal project it should be undertaken at once and carried to completion as promptly as efficiency in construction will permit."

Application for a loan to build dams and a generating station was denied by the Public Works Administration last year because, it was stated, a sufficient market for the power had not been shown.

The commission was appointed and assigned to report on the practical and economical aspects of the project, particularly the latter.

"If we judge the future by the past, and recall how markets have often come to power sites, such, for example as Niagara, it seems clear that industry will still seek cheap power, and it is quite within the bounds of reasonable possibility that the manufacturing of stainless steel, aluminum, fertilizer and other similar industries might well be developed in the Quoddy region, which is through climate and proximity to Europe particularly well adapted to such enterprises," the commission said.

THE MEN'S LEAGUE

A Stormy Night Trip To Europe With Portland Pastor As Conductor

Thirty-five members of the Baptist Men's League braved Thursday night's blizzard to hear Rev. Dr. William H. Jones of Portland, and after partaking of a nice roast pork supper were whisked aboard a trans-Atlantic steamship for a voyage to Europe, personally conducted by the guest speaker.

The multitudinous duties of a conducted tour were first described by the speaker, who has made 10 of them, and who said that there had been only 25 members seaskick in all that time.

Mr. Jones plans his own tours and generally makes Cherbourg, France his first port of call. You wonder when you come to it why New York doesn't wake up, the speaker said, for your baggage is ashore before you are, while in New York there is always a delay.

The first meal eaten on foreign soil is in the diner as you ride from Cherbourg to Paris. You wait in vain for a glass of water, and eventually learn that you have to order and pay for it the same as you do articles of food. When you go abroad you must not expect things as they are in your own country.

Most of the talk about Paris is bosh, but you can find what you want there. The stores are not as good as in this country but are interesting. In all Europe there is no store equal to Marshall Field's in Chicago. The focalized life of the French people is to be found in Paris. Many tourists make it a point to attend the Russian church there, and stand for two or three hours listening to the wonderful music.

You get your first impression of Europe in Paris. Last year, however, the tourists did not spend as much money there as usual because the French franc was so high.

Switzerland is just as you have read about it—clean and beautiful. It would be a wonderful thing if our American hotel men could be sent there for a post graduate course. If you can see only one city there, go to Interlaken, in the shadow of the Jungfrau. If you go to the top you are forced to leave the electric cars at least twice—ostensibly for the view, but really because of the effect the elevation has on your heart. Business was poor in Switzerland last season; people were not traveling.

IMPORTANT BILLS APPEAR

The Convention System Of Nominating and Elimination Of Council Are Considered

A bill providing for the convention system of nominating candidates for State and county offices, with the right of defeated candidates to appeal in a popular primary election was introduced in the House Wednesday by Representative Donald W. Philbrick of Cape Elizabeth. The bill would repeal all existing laws inconsistent with its provisions.

State conventions of the major political parties would nominate candidates for Governor and U. S. senator and elect delegates to the national conventions. It would also nominate candidates for presidential elector.

Congressional district, county and representative class conventions would nominate candidates for Congress. State senator and State representative.

Delegates to the conventions would be elected on a community representative basis to be determined by the State committees of the parties. State and district committees would be elected by the conventions.

By Philbrick's bill, defeated candidates for convention nominations except those candidates for the State House of Representatives, who received 20 percent of the total number of votes cast in their contests could enter a popular primary. Candidates for the State House of Representatives could appeal regardless of the vote received.

Defeated convention candidates desirous of entering the primaries would be required to file with the Secretary of State a petition bearing the signatures of "not less than 10 percent in number of the gubernatorial vote of his political party cast at the election next preceding such convention within the electoral district or division for which he is a candidate."

The popular primary ballots would designate as such the convention nominee and the appealing candidate. All successful candidates would be bound to fulfill the terms of the platform of their respective parties to the best of their ability.

ALLEGED WIRE GANG IN TOILS

Wholesale Thefts From the Lime Corporation Apparently Bared By Recent Arrests

Wholesale thefts of copper wire from the Rockland and Rockport Lime Corporation, amounting to more than two tons, the officials say, are believed to have been checked with the arrest of Robert Cuthbertson, Fred Ott and Charles H. Robinson, who before Recorder Otis yesterday pleaded guilty to the larceny of 800 pounds sold to a Bangor junk dealer.

The officials say that the trio also admitted having previously sold a ton or more to a Belfast junk dealer. Immediately upon being notified of the thefts Sheriff Ludwick called for samples of the wire which was being stolen, and Supt. Knott C. Rankin provided him with an ample supply. Mr. Ludwick sent some of those samples to sheriffs within a wide radius and asked Lieut. A. W. Cushman to do the same with the State Police. The latter bet proved the better one in this instance for one of the State patrolmen in the Bangor district located some of the alleged stolen property in a Bangor junk shop within 30 minutes after it had been sold there by Cuthbertson and Robinson, the officers say. The two men were soon "picked up" by the State Police, and were brought to Rockland by Sheriff Ludwick and Lieut. Cushman. Ott was not a member of the expedition, being laid up at home with a broken wrist.

Recorder Otis held the three men for the February grand jury in the sum of $500 each. Ott obtained bail, but his companions were still in jail when this paper went to press.

It was the first important case which has come in the new sheriff jurisdiction and the successful outcome is in full accord with his record as deputy for seven years.

The sheriff's department and State Police work in complete harmony, and the result of the co-operation is particularly emphasized in this instance.

The Executive Council

The continued existence of the Maine Governor's Council Wednesday held attention of legislators as efforts to abolish it or reverse methods of selecting its membership moved towards legislative action. Some legislators scoffed at the possibility such legislation would become law while others held hopes it would be successful.

Senator Fernald of Waldo, a Republican, has filed a bill for abolition. Representative Everett N. Hobbs, Democrat of Hope, was preparing a measure under which council members would be elected in councilor district elections rather than by the Legislature. Meanwhile, Democratic leaders said they expected Republicans would introduce legislation to give the Council continued power over State Highway funds appropriated by the Legislature, a power granted as an emergency measure two years ago and which expires in July.

C. Carroll Blaisdell of Hancock, Republican floor leader in the Senate, said it would be "foolish" to abolish the council. Representative John Clark Scotts, Democratic leader in the House, gave his support to Hobbs' measure but said he would like to see the council's functions abolished.

"The Executive Council acts as an emergency brake on State business when the Legislature is not in session," said Blaisdell. "Careful and conservative men serve on it. I doubt if a bill to abolish it could obtain 30 votes in the entire Legislature."

Burton Smith, veteran chief deputy U. S. Marshal of the District of Maine, has been named Marshal by Judge John A. Peters to fill the vacancy in the office caused by the death Monday at Bangor of Kingsbury B. Piper. The appointment is regarded as temporary, with appointment of a permanent marshal to come from Washington, and John G. Utterback, former Congressman, prominently mentioned as probable incumbent. Marshal Smith reappointed the entire staff of deputies including Lester D. Eaton, former warden of the State Prison.

THE SALVATION ARMY

Adjutant F. L. Keller of the Portland Salvation Army Headquarters will conduct the weekend services at the local corps in Rockland. Adjutant Keller is no stranger to Rockland having conducted meetings here in the past and is always welcomed by large crowds in the meetings. This weekend is the windup of a special week of meetings that has been in progress in the interest of young people. Adjutant Keller who is in charge of the young people's work in this division is coming to inspect the rolls. Meetings as usual for the weekend.

It has been estimated that 229 per cent of the population of the United States is now past 45 years old.

COMPETENT COAST GUARD

The value of the local Coast Guard unit was again emphasized in Thursday afternoon's heavy storm when Patrol Boat 211, commanded by Bos'n Mate Alfred E. Phalen went to the assistance of A. C. McLoon & Co.'s smack Juanita which was in distress off the Breakwater as the result of engine trouble.

The little craft was drifting slowly seaward in the slush and ice and the two men on board would have been in a position of actual peril had not the patrol boat picked the craft up and towed it to the Underwood Wharf.

"RATES NOT UNREASONABLE"

Rates charged by the Camden and Rockland Water Company were not "unreasonable, unjust and excessive," the Public Utilities Commission ruled yesterday in dismissing a complaint filed against the company by residents of Rockland, Camden and Thomaston.

The Commission said it was "not convinced" the rates charged by the company were "excessive."

"It is our conclusion that there is no occasion for the commission to find a new figure for fair value or a revised rate base in the present proceedings," the commission said.

MEETING MR. QUIGG

Some Notes Concerning the New Pastor of Littlefield Memorial Church

Increased interest in the affairs of Littlefield Memorial Church have marked the advent of the new pastor, John L. Quigg, who has taken hold of his tasks with a zeal that has commanded the prompt support of the parish.

Mr. Quigg is a native of Woodstock, N. B., and graduated from the high school there in 1927. He entered the ministry while a junior, and held a pastorate during his senior year in school. Coming to Maine immediately after leaving high school he became pastor of the Hermon Baptist Church in the fall. Since coming to Maine he has also held pastorates in Levant, North Sedgwick and South Bluehill, his stay of four and one-half years at North Sedgwick having been especially fruitful.

Mr. Quigg has studied at Bangor Theological Seminary and Gordon College, commuting from North Sedgwick last year in order to pursue his studies in the latter institution.

He was married June 6, 1929, to Miss Mary Grant of Hermon, and they have one child—Jeannette Ruth Quigg, born in 1931. Mr. Quigg's father is a Baptist clergyman, Rev. P. J. Quigg, located at Island Falls, Me.

The new pastor of the Littlefield Memorial Church is an earnest preacher of the Gospel, an excellent singer, and has a personality which instantly wins friends. Mrs. Quigg effectively shares her husband's activities in the church. She is engaged in work among the young people, having a girl's class in the church school, and being also in charge of the Intermediate Endeavor school.

YOUR FAVORITE POEM

If I had my life to live again I would have made a rule to read some poetry and listen to some music at least once a week. The loss of these tastes is a loss of happiness.—Charles Darwin.

Miss Cecily Hallock, author of "The Divine Office of the Kitchen," is a young English writer, living in London. She is a convert to the Catholic faith, and many of her articles and poems appear in Catholic periodicals. She has said that she wrote "The Divine Office of the Kitchen" for a young friend who complained that domestic drudgery ruined her hands for violin playing. The poem has been erroneously attributed to an English servant girl, has been read by the Rev. G. Campbell Morgan in Westminster Chapel, in abridged form, the same abridged, inaccurate form being later distributed by John D. Rockefeller at a Lakewood, N. J. church, in April, 1929. Mr. Rockefeller's leaflet created much interest in the poem and it was widely printed and quoted. The following is the complete poem.

THE DIVINE OFFICE OF THE KITCHEN
"God walks among the pots and pipkins"—St. Theresa.

Lord of the pots and pipkins, since I have no time to be a saint by doing lovely things and vigiling with Thee
By watching in the twilight dawn, and stirring Heaven's gates.
Make me a saint by getting meals and washing up the plates!

Lord of the pots and pipkins, please, I offer Thee for souls.
The tiresomeness of tea leaves, and the sticky porridge bowls!
Remind me of the things I need, not just to save the stoves,
But so that I may perfectly lay tables into prayers.

Accept my roughened hands because I made them so for Thee!
Pretend my dish-mop is a bow, which heavenly harmony
Makes on a fiddle frying-pan; it is so hard to clean.
And oh, so horrid! Hear, dear Lord, the music that I mean!

Although I must have Martha hands, I have a Mary mind.
And when I black the boots, I try Thy sandals, Lord, to find.
I think of how they trod our earth, what working words to cease.
Accept this meditation when I haven't time for more.

Vespers and Compline come to pass by washing supper things.
And, mostly, I am very tired; and all the heart that sings.
About the morning's work is gone before me, into bed.
Lend me, dear Lord, Thy tireless heart, to work in me instead!

My matins are said overnight to praise and bless Thy name.
Beforehand for tomorrow's work, which will be just the same.
So that it seems I go to bed still in my working dress.
Lord, make Thy Cinderella soon a heavenly princess!

Warm all the kitchen with Thy love, and light it with Thy peace!
Forgive the worrying and make the grumbling words to cease.
Lord, who laid breakfast on the shore, forgive the world which saith are good things come to God out of poor Nazareth!"

Cecily W. Hallock.

AT NORTHERD CHURCH

Reception Tendered To Mr. and Mrs. John L. Quigg a Happy Affair

John L. Quigg, who recently entered upon his pastoral duties at the Littlefield Memorial Free Baptist Church, under such favorable auspices, was tendered a reception by the members of the church Wednesday night, together with his wife. The large attendance and delightful social evening was further evidence of the happy relations between the new pastor and his flock.

An artistic arrangement of potted plants, rugs and floor lamps added much to the attractiveness of the parlors, this work being under the direction of Mrs. Frank Gregory. Mrs. Christine Dorman, Mrs. Maynard Gray and Mrs. Arthur Gray.

In the receiving line with Mr. and Mrs. Quigg were the deacons and their wives—Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Gregory, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dorman, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph P. Conant, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Randall, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Monroe, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry P. Chase.

During the reception this interesting program was presented under the direction of Miss Olive Bragg; Gospel songs; vocal duet, Mrs. Florentia Roache and Miss Irene Stanley reading, Miss Sarah Hall; vocal solo, Mrs. Christine Dorman; saxophone solo, Lewis Brown; mixed quartet, Mrs. Christine Dorman, Mrs. Grace Fish, Clarence Dorman and Frank B. Gregory; Hawaiian guitar solo, Miss Irene Hanley.

Rev. J. C. MacDonald of the First Baptist Church extended the greetings of the local church, to which Mr. Quigg gave a very pleasing response. Prayer was offered by Rev. Charles E. Brooks of the Methodist Church. Carol Wixson and Stanley Gregory were ushers.

Refreshments were served under direction of Mrs. Therese Chase, Mrs. Nellie Higgins, Mrs. Carol Wixson, Mrs. Sidney Monroe, and Mrs. Amy Coltart, the waiters being Misses Vivian Chaples, Daisy Gray, Myra Watts, Olive Jameson, Genevieve Gray and Blanche Gray.

City Matron Says Suffering Due To "Confusion" and "Overlapping"

Rockland, Jan. 18
Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—
I have been visiting many homes these last two weeks and it's no use getting away from facts—children are going cold both day and night for lack of clothing. I have supplied as much as I possibly could with the means at my disposal.

There is confusion and overlapping in so many societies doing relief—so many "heads"—so many running around—so little gumption, common sense and tact used—that it would be amusing if it were not pathetic.

Children's clothing, quilts, and bedding are needed and needed badly.

Please send clothing to the City Matron's office, Spring street.

Rodney E. Feyler, the new Commissioner of Sea and Shore Fisheries, has appointed his predecessor, Horatio D. Crie of Thomaston to serve with William Thurston of McKinley and Clarence Goldthwaite of Biddeford Pool as Chief Wardens. Commissioner Feyler stated that the new deputy wardens would be appointed next week, and it is reported that a considerable number of changes would be made. Commissioner Feyler will occupy the newly established office in Thomaston. He said he will retain Mrs. Helen Halliwell as chief clerk.

A Diagnostic and Follow-up clinic held jointly by the Maine Public Health Association, and the Bureau of Institutions, of the State Department of Health and Welfare was held Wednesday at Knox County General Hospital. Ten patients attended who had previously had a tuberculosis skin test and a chest x-ray. This clinic was arranged with the aid of Supt. E. L. Toner, Miss Eliza Jane Steele, R.N. of Rockland assisted. The clinician was Dr. A. Paul Wakefield, superintendent of Central Maine Sanatorium, at Fairfield. These clinics are made possible by the sale of Christmas Seals.

THE TOWNSEND PLAN

Draws Sharp Comment From W. R. Walter, Who Has Live Views

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

While bowling along the highway we sometimes meet a sign: "Road under construction", and then we creep along with all patience, picturing in imagination the beautiful drives in store for us when the new road is completed. It is very much the same as we go creeping slowly over the debris left in our way by the depression, but there is no patent or copyright on our thoughts and right to believe that a better way of living, a greater equalization of privilege and wealth, and, best of all, the knitting together of souls—not only local and national but international.

But what progress has been made thus far? Some, but slight. It seems like the frog climbing out of the well, climbing three feet each day and falling back two at night.

We are not ready to believe that the "landslide" in the late election was so much in sympathy with the plans of the present administration as it was against the regime of former administrations. This is a progressive world, and no one can recall any time in history when the people were satisfied to remain in their present status. The unwritten motto is "Upward and Onward".

There is no doubt in my mind that the present administration means well, but it does seem that it is trying to disentangle itself from the meshes in which it finds itself. However, the President's message at the opening of Congress was a surprise to many and savored of an optimistic outlook and a willingness to change courses whenever deemed expedient.

I lay no claim to be a politician or statesman, but have a right to think and to express my thoughts. I think the Townsend plan is rather visionary, and the President's plan to give all people over 65 years old $50 a month, is about right.

That would lift a heavy burden from all local communities, especially the rural ones. The Townsend plan calls for $200 a month, $2400 a year. The letters written for and against the plan are 90% in favor, but most of them think $200 too much and would cut it down to $100. But how about raising the money? They say the "revolving" part of the plan would provide for that. That would be perpetual motion, which, with all the efforts put forth to discover or invent it, has never been developed. Years ago I stood on the bank of the Kennebec river at Augusta and watched a machine pumping water from the river to the boardinghouse about 40 feet up-grade. The machine was so eccentrically arranged and balanced that it retained enough water in its buckets to carry it over the center and force the remainder up to the house. On my next visit to the city I was interested enough to visit the spot where the machine was located, but it wasn't there—impracticable. So they would, methinks, find the "revolving" plan clogged with many unthinkable amounts of money to pay someone, or ones to look after, to see that all was spent according to the plan. Then it could be disbursed to children and grandchildren and they could hoard it. False oaths also might be in evidence.

The Townsend plan calls for $2400 a year which the majority of people think extravagant and we know it is by experience. We know of a Civil War veteran who drew $1200 a year pension. He not only supported a large family, but when he died left a large sum to be disbursed among his relatives. If that is true, couldn't things be evened up a little by cutting down the salaries of our official families. For instance, our Congressmen receiving $10,000 a year. Couldn't they be cut and then have enough? They also have aids under government pay, and more often than not their helps are from their own families. Members of the President's cabinet are paid $12,000 a year and their assistants are paid up in the thousands and each has private secretaries and advisors, all under Uncle Sam's pay. It is my opinion the government forces could be cut nearly in half and then carry on.

It is said when President Cleveland assumed office he found 1000 clerks under pay that they had absolutely no use for, and which were discharged. When interest in the codes was at its zenith I received several notices to line up. Finally I received a threatening letter. This was sent to the President together with a personal letter explaining my situation. A letter acknowledging its receipt was received from a committee on that code. They said I would receive a reply in a few days from another committee, which I did, and very courteously handing out much useful information. However, at its close they advised if I wanted further advice, to write to another committee.

Here were three committees on one code, and don't know how many more all, no doubt, under good pay. What right have the railroads to pay their presidents $150,000 a year, some of their vice presidents $35,000 and so on down the line, with the government supplying deficits? Is it good business taste to pay the president of an oil company $150,000 salary and other employees way up in the thousands, and us fellows, who like a little outing with the autos, pay such unnecessary exorbitant salaries? The consumers not the producers are paying the bills.

In our own county of Lincoln the offices were zealously contended for when the salaries were much less than now, and competent men and women of today would gladly assume the tasks appertaining to the offices if the salaries were cut.

Back in 1900 salaries of Maine legislators were $150, now they are $600. It is not reasonable to expect a legislator to get through a session financially whole with the original small salary, but I do believe there are plenty of men and women, abundantly able to make good whole some laws to live by, for some less salary.

Correct all the extravagant disbursements of money and the burden of taxes will melt away like dew before a July sun.

DOWN-HEARTED? A UNANIMOUS NO!

It may be hard to teach your legs to do things after they've had a battle with a flock of infantile paralysis germs, but little Carrie Surlak of New York isn't downhearted about it, as the picture (lower left) plainly indicates. Carrie is showing her legs a thing or two with the help of Miss Constance Huerstel. Nor has she anything on the 15-year-old lad smiling from a respirator (right). He is Herbert

Fuchs, also of New York. Two smiling youngsters (upper left) their legs in braces, partake of their midday luncheon at Camp Allyn for Crippled Children in Cincinnati, Ohio. These four and more than 200,000 fellow-sufferers throughout the nation will be beneficiaries of the 1935 Birthday Ball for the President, Jan. 30, when more than 5,600 communities from coast to coast unite to raise funds for fighting what Col. Henry L. Doherty, national chairman of the Birthday Ball committee, calls "the most dreaded disease menacing the nation". Seventy cents of every dollar raised will be retained by local communities to rehabilitate infantile paralysis victims, while thirty cents of every dollar will be turned over to a Birthday Ball Commission for Infantile Paralysis Research appointed by the President.

THE WEATHER
 The mercury had an ambitious streak in the middle of the day yesterday and went well up in the 20's, but the effort was too much for it, as seen by the fact that it was only a trifle above zero again this morning. A northwest wind and blue sky did not seem to offer much hope for warmer weather, but the gazeek who sits on the safety valve said that increasing cloudiness would extend into Maine tomorrow and that Sunday we may look for snow, possibly changing to rain. The last time such a prediction was made the temperature went down to zero, and Gene O'Neil is still trying to pry the sleet off The Thorndike windows. In Boston the barometer reading this morning was 30.57 and rising, which corresponded very closely with The Courier-Gazette's weather indicator. "Cheer up!" as Helen would say.

Up in Canada they are playing roller hockey, a second cousin to the grand old game of roller polo.

Fales Circle, Ladies of the G.A.R., meets Wednesday at 7.30 at the home of Mrs. Lora Boynton, Hall street.

Ralph Ulmer Camp and Auxiliary will hold their respective business meetings Wednesday night, with new officers in the chairs.

Baraca Class will have a social Wednesday at 7.30 at the Methodist vestry, with Maynard Marston as chairman of a mens committee.

Funeral services for J. E. Knowlton who died suddenly Thursday morning will be held at the Masonic Temple in Union Sunday afternoon at 1.30.

Members of the Auxiliary of the Sons of Union Veterans are invited to the home of Mrs. Harold Thomas Wednesday afternoon for sewing. A covered dish supper will be served and a social evening enjoyed.

Sunshine Society will hold a silver tea on Monday afternoon at the Central Maine rooms. Hostesses will be Mrs. Etta Sanborn, Mrs. Etta Covel and Mrs. Mabel Wyllie. Members are asked to take dishes.

Ruth Mayhew Tent meets Monday afternoon for sewing. Circle supper will be under the direction of Mrs. Belle Bowley and Mrs. Allie Blackington. There will be initiation, officers to wear white. The birthday of Comrade H. R. Huntley will be observed with a special program.

Funeral services for Mrs. Annie Alexander were held Thursday at the Russell funeral home, Mr. Richardson of the First Church of Christ Scientist, was reader. The bearers were Almon P. Richardson, Charles M. Richardson, Albert Thurston and Albra Perry. Interment was in Sea View cemetery.

Attractions at Strand Theatre next week are: Sunday and Monday "Here Is My Heart," with Bing Crosby-Kitty Carlisle; Tuesday, "Night Is Young," with Ramon Novarro; Wednesday "Wicked Woman," with Charles Bickford and Jean Parker; Thursday "President Vanishes," with Arthur Byron; Friday, "Maybe It's Love," with Gloria Stuart and Ross Alexander; Saturday, "Best Man Wins," with Jack Holt.

Circle supper at the Congregational vestry Wednesday will have Miss Dorothy Snow as chairman. Her helpers will be Miss Mary Wasgett, Miss Corice Thomas, Mrs. L. B. Cook, Mrs. H. W. Look, Mrs. Frank Marsh, Miss Hazel Marshall, Miss Alice Hodgkins, Mrs. R. C. Jewell, Miss Mary Harriman, Miss Ruth Peterson, Mrs. Carl Snow, Jr., Miss Frances Hodgdon and Miss Relief Nichols.

Mrs. Carrie Winchenbaugh and Mrs. Mary Jordan were in charge of circle supper Wednesday evening of Auxiliary of Sons of Union Veterans. Mrs. Gladys Thomas extended an invitation to meet at her home Wednesday afternoon for sewing, a covered dish supper and a social evening. Housekeepers appointed for the meeting of Feb. 6 are Mrs. Velma Marsh, Mrs. Doris Ames and Mrs. Ella Flye. There will be sewing and beano in the afternoon. Mrs. Alvena Thompson chairman.

An echo of the old roller polo days comes to the sports editor's desk in the form of a letter from Robert L. Morrison of Pawtucket.

Mrs. Mary Sistrare is chairman of public supper the American Legion Auxiliary is serving tonight at Legion hall from 5 to 7.

The hard boiled Lincoln Academy basketball team, agog over the prospect of another cup, plays Rockland High in this city tonight, coming with a confidence which will be met with determination on the part of the home team. The girls' game also offers an interesting proposition.

IMPROVING OUR HARBOR

Petitions for improvement to Rockland Harbor, with a view to being prepared for an industry which might require it, are being signed avidly along the street, and the committee desires to have them in hand before next Wednesday. If you are looking for a chance to sign you will find petitions in four places on Main street—Charles C. Tibbets fruit store, Burpee Furniture store, Chisholm's fruit store and Ideal Lunch. The petitions will be sent to Senators Hale and White and Congressman Moran.

A charming musical program was presented to the Rockland Rotary Club yesterday. The High School Glee Club, 40 strong, under direction of Mrs. Esther Stevenson Rogers, gave a splendidly balanced selection of vocal numbers that were a joy to hear. Principal Libby of the Junior High who is handling the orchestra, has built up an organization which would be a credit to any school and the youngsters showed truly amazing skill on the various instruments, the orchestra mustering 25 pieces. Next Friday night, Lions, Forty and Rotary Clubs will unite in a meeting at The Thorndike with a special illustrated travel program.

At a meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Peter's Church Thursday these officers and committees were named for the ensuing year: President and treasurer, Mrs. Percy Dinsmore; assistant president, Mrs. O. B. Hyland; secretary, Mrs. T. J. Foley; housekeeping committee (re-appointed), Mrs. John Thomas, Mrs. Hyland, Mrs. Anne Alden, Mrs. Josephine Lathrop; welfare committee, Mrs. Vina Varney, Mrs. Alton Decrow, Mrs. Foley; Red Cross, Mrs. Foley; hospitality and charge of dining room, Mrs. W. M. Little, Mrs. Alexander Browne, Mrs. Fernie Browne; choir mothers for boys, Mrs. Arthur Wisner, Mrs. John Thomas, Mrs. Hyland, Mrs. George Haskell; choir mothers for girls, Miss Margaret Buttmore, Mrs. Dinsmore; card committee, Mrs. George B. Davis, Mrs. George Avery, Mrs. Varney, Mrs. George Parker, Mrs. John Gannett; publicity, Mrs. Davis; calling committee, Miss Nettie Clark, Mrs. Decrow, Mrs. R. E. Estes, Mrs. Wisner, Mrs. Foley. A social hour was enjoyed with Miss Nettie Clark serving refreshments.

Pleasant Valley Grange started another year's activities Tuesday night. Guests from Wessaweske Grange were present, and they are to present the three-act comedy "The Professor's Romance" at Pleasant Valley hall Friday Jan. 25. A volunteer program was enjoyed. For next Tuesday evening the following is offered: Piano selection, Ethel Connon; original poem, F. L. S. Morse; nail driving contest (?); duet, R. Anderson and M. Greene; conundrum, Susan Spear; reading, Mary Sistrare; accordion, Eunice Morse; funny story, Ellis Sprague; song, Myron Young; reading, Harriet Grover. Take your old photographs for a guessing contest. At this meeting a contest begins between brothers and sisters. Assistant Steward Mank will captain the men and L.A.S. Hazel Bartlett the ladies. The losing side furnishes treat at end of contest which will be in four weeks. The contest is: To see how many moth or caterpillar nests can be collected by the Grange as a means of ridding the community of these pests. A prize will be awarded to the one from each side collecting the most. Last year at this time this Grange did a great deal of credit to themselves at this work. The sisters won. Nests will be brought in each meeting night for four weeks when the contest closes. Here's hoping other Granges will do the same.

MRS. B. W. CANDAGE

A large number of friends and acquaintances attended the funeral of Mrs. B. W. Candage of Seal Harbor Jan. 11. The service was conducted by Rev. Ellsworth M. Smith and Dr. Albert L. Whitaker.

Born in Rockland June 23, 1845 Mrs. Candage has lived in Seal Harbor for the past 53 years. She was one of 10 children of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Simonton. Her father and brothers were all active and adventurous men of the old seafaring stock who made colorful history along the Maine coast and throughout the oceans of the world.

She was married to Byron Whitefield Candage and eventually went to Seal Harbor where for a long term of years Mr. Candage as a builder and his brother Charles as an architect, built a great many of the homes of our summer residents, first working as journeymen on the home of former President Charles W. Eliot of Harvard at Northeast Harbor, where one goes in the summer colonies of Northeast, Seal and Bar Harbor, one sees the comfortable and enduring memorials to these master builders who built honestly and well. Mrs. Candage, in her 90th year, survived her husband by nine years. Her passing marks the end of the older generation of one of Mount Desert's pioneer families.

Mrs. Candage was a member of the Rockland Baptist Church and of the Asilou Lodge of Rebekahs at Northeast Harbor. Her increasing deafness made it impossible for her to live as active a life as she would have wished. However, in the confines of her home and those of her children she was constantly welcoming visitors and callers with a degree of pleasure that contributed joy to herself and the visitors alike. Her mind was singularly alert to the events of every day. The tremendous changes which have taken place during her long life have been welcome and fascinating to her. She kept abreast of the times in all things.

Mr. and Mrs. Candage had four children, Samuel W. W. C. Doane, Arthur H. (deceased), and Nina C. Burke. Those who know her will always recall with affection her relish of good stories and humor, her impatience with wrong, her staunch grit in dealing with her own illnesses. Because of her undimmed relish for life even in advanced age, her friends have been given a living illustration that life is good. She taught to face each eventful day with sure confidence in God and in ourselves.

IN MEMORIAM
 In loving memory of Bert Stanley, who passed away Jan. 18, 1930.
 We miss you now, our hearts are sore,
 As time goes on we miss you more.
 Your loving smile, your sweet face
 No one can fill your vacant place.
 Wife, Daughter and Son.

IN MEMORIAM
 In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Huldah Stone, who passed away Jan. 18, 1904.
 Nothing but memories since that sad day.
 When the one we loved was called away,
 Gone is the face we loved so dear,
 Silent the voice we loved to hear.
 In silence she suffered,
 In patience she bore,
 Sincere and true in heart and mind,
 What a beautiful memory she left behind.
 Charles A. Stone, Farnham S. Stone, Mabel Stone, Mrs. Dana Miller and the grandchildren.

Rockland High School's New Hockey Team Holds the Hebron Reserves To Tie

A green but hard fighting Rockland High Hockey team surprised Maine hockey fans yesterday at Hebron by holding a powerful Hebron Reserve team to a 2-2 tie in an overtime game. A great deal of credit should be given to Jim Accardi who played goalie for Rockland. For a man who had never been on skates in all his life until a few weeks ago he did a remarkable job of goal guarding. The defensive work of Bobby Crane was also a feature of the game along with the offensive work of Sam Glover, Sid Harden and Dick French. The lineup:

Hebron (2) (2) Rockland
 Farmer, rw lw, Glover
 Hollis, c c, French
 Polard, lw rw, Harden
 Scammon, rd rd, Crane
 Vale, g g, Accardi
 Chase, rd g, Accardi
 Hebron spares, Beal, Clifford, Lewis, Huber, Sweet, Dwyer.
 Rockland spares, Gray, D. Harden, Glover, Peaslee, Webber.

First Period
 Glover, unassisted 4.30

Second Period
 French, pass from Glover 9.20
 Huber, pass from Hollis 13.10

Third Period
 Beal, pass from Lewis 5.30
 Penalties, Crane, roughing, Glover, checking, Farmer roughing.

Referee, Davenport. Time: 3-15's.

SERMONETTE

THE WORLD'S GREAT LOVE STORY

Rebekah at the Well

IN SIX PARTS—NO. IV.

The maiden stopped in astonishment as the servant ran toward her but she heard his plea, "Let me, I pray thee, drink a little water of thy pitcher!"

In those Eastern countries in the desert water was vital to life; she probably was not a bit surprised. Did any premonition cross her mind of the great things to flow from this strange meeting, to herself, to Israel and to all mankind? We may not know, but she was gracious and respectful.

"Drink, my Lord," and she let down her pitcher and gave him drink and said, "I will draw water for thy camels also." No small job to draw water for ten thirsty camels!

All this while the old man pondered and held his peace. Was she the one? He must know—so when the camels were at last watered he took a golden earring of half shekels weight and two bracelets for her hands of ten shekels weight and said:

"Whose daughter art thou? tell me, I pray thee, is there room in thy father's house for us to lodge?"

Simply she said, "I am the daughter of Bethuel. We have both straw and provender enough and room to lodge in."

She ran to her mother's house and told these things; her brother Laban noting earring and bracelets ran to meet Abram's old servant.

"Come in; wherefore standest thou without? I have prepared the house, and room for the camels." They ungirded the camels, fed them, provided water to wash the men's feet, and set meat before him; but he said, "I cannot eat until I have told my errand," and Laban said, "Speak on!"

William A. Holman.

At St. Peter's Church (Episcopal), services tomorrow will be appropriate for the second Sunday after Epiphany: Holy communion at 7.30; church school at 9.30; Choral Eucharist and sermon at 10.30; vesper at 7.30.

At First Church of Christ, Scientist, corner of Cedar and Brewster streets, Sunday services are at 10.30 and the subject of the Lesson-Sermon tomorrow will be "Life." Sunday School is at 11.45. Wednesday evening testimony meeting is at 7.30. The reading room is located at 400 Main street, and is open week days from 2 until 5 p. m.

Rev. John Smith Lowe, D.D., at the Universalist Church Sunday at 10.45 will have as the topic of his discourse "What Kind of a World Are We Living In?" Dr. Lowe will point out that we are living in a world of good and evil possibilities, not a world of certainties, with a large share of the responsibilities resting with us to see what is done with these possibilities. The quartet will sing "They that sow in tears" from Gaul's oratorio "The Holy City," and Mrs. E. R. Veazie, soprano, will present a solo. Church school will meet at noon, also Mrs. Glover's women's

At the Littlefield Memorial Church the pastor Rev. John L. Quigg, will preach at both services. His morning subject will be "The Holy Spirit" and there is always a sermonette for the young folks. Prayer meeting on Tuesday evening at 7.30 and Ladies' Aid Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Alice Gray, Camden street. Thursday the Aid will have a "Help one another" day, holding an all-day session at the home of Mrs. Frank Gregory, North Main street, with a covered dish picnic lunch at noon.

At the Littlefield Memorial Church the pastor Rev. John L. Quigg, will preach at both services. His morning subject will be "The Holy Spirit" and there is always a sermonette for the young folks. There will be special music by a mixed quartet. The Sunday school hour is at 11.45, and everybody is invited as we are aiming at a goal of 175 and are only 23 short of that number. Intermediate Christian Endeavor meets at 5.15 in charge of Mrs. Quigg and Senior Christian Endeavor at 6.15 led by Miss Blanche Gray. At 7.15 the service is opened by a big singing assisted by the junior choir. The pastor will have a stirring gospel sermon, looking forward to evangelistic meetings to be held by the Taylor brothers the first two weeks in April. SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I—With his yacht, the Intrepid, practically abandoned by its crew, Felix Horton, millionaire, sailing with his mother, his daughter, Nan, and Roy Stuart, puts into Squaw Harbor, Alaska, to recruit. He unsuccessfully tries to engage Eric Ericsson, holding master's papers but at the time unemployed. Failing to secure sailors, Horton engages a bunch of nondescript strangers there. A gigantic Polak called Sandomar, deaf but not dumb, is their leader. At the request of Captain Wayne, the Intrepid's skipper, an old friend, Eric engages to sail as chief officer.

CHAPTER II—Horton is seeking uncharted islands off the coast of Alaska. He and Ericsson look on the voyage as a wild-goose chase. Nan, attracted by Eric's quiet strength, indulges in a moonlight flirtation, which brings them both to the threshold of interest in each other, if not of love.

CHAPTER III

NORTH of Ignak Island they came to the great, gray Davy Jones shoal. It was perilously troubled. The waters seemed mysteriously troubled. There were powerful currents, varying in direction from hour to hour, that would sweep a pulling dory out to sea; big eddies; formidable ground swells.

"I don't like it," Eric said. "If we hang up and have to take to the boats, we'll be in a sweet fix."

"We wouldn't last long," Captain Wayne shook his gray head. "Our only hope would be for these cursed currents to sweep us to sea before one of those big swells hit us. They'd make kindling wood of those ships of ours."

"Why don't you tell Horton so? The crazy fool will lose his ship and drown the whole company. There's no way through these reefs."

"Tell him yourself, if you want to. It's like talking to the wind. He thinks his checkbook will buy off a typhoon."

As the Intrepid cruised on, the deep-toned bay of the breakers became a gurgling roar, and the waves beating on the crags hurled up clouds of spray. The first day's search was fruitless. When the shadows fell, Wayne hastened into open sea and dropped anchor. Early the next morning prospects brightened. Eric had taken accurate bearings. If Roy Stuart's old diary was correct, the pass through the reefs was less than a league away.

Presently the long sweep of blue waves showed open water. Ten minutes later they were at the gateway through the shoals—a strait half a mile wide, and guarded on each side by perilous reefs.

Horton was jubilant, and granted bonuses to the whole company. Roy's impassive face did not flush, nor his voice raise one note, but Nan knew that his cold soul was thrilled. She and Eric shared a child's thrill in the adventure itself.

Captain Wayne alone remained downcast. He was an old man and did not like young waters. The wide lagoon seemed to him like a trap.

Later in the murky afternoon a cry rang out from the watch aloft. "Land ho!"

"Where away?"

"On our port bow. She may be another fog-bank."

But in a few minutes the glasses showed what was unmistakably an island, low and gray and guarded by black crags. It was insignificant in size, not more than three miles from cape to cape, and if it were one of the scores of minor links in the Aleutian chain fifty miles to the south, it might be hardly worth a name; but here it was a discovery of some little scientific importance. No chart in the Intrepid's pilot house recorded its existence.

Roy, who was watching from the bridge, brought powerful binoculars, turned to Horton with a curious sparkle in his cold, gray eyes. "The island is inhabited. I can see green mounds. They must be barabaras—turf houses."

"Then the people are Aleut Indians?"

"No doubt. The huts aren't the Siberian types. I can see fourteen—eighteen—twenty. That means a population of from sixty to a hundred. Strange how they ever made it here."

"There are probably other passes," Horton said. "They wouldn't live here alone, with no contact with their tribes people. Roy, I'm afraid I'm a little disappointed. We can't claim now that we've discovered a new island unknown though it is. Siberian traders would never let these people alone; there's probably a ship in here every year."

"They've kept mighty still about it, anyway; probably the island yields some good fur." Roy watched in silence a long time. "Well, there's one of the hunters. He's got on a long parka that looks Aleut to me."

"By the way, I believe he's got a spear, not a gun."

But this had no special significance, as Roy well knew. Rifles and ammunition are expensive; natives on many remote Alaskan islands often return to their primitive weapons.

Waymire rounded the cape and dropped anchor a mile outside the narrow-mouthed bay on which stood the Indian village. This was early June; night should not fall until eleven. By nine the sea, world, and sky were one dreary pall of sleet, spindrift, and foam. By midnight the sleet seemed to be blown out of the sky, but to Wayne's dismay, the wind seemed to be working around to the northwest. At one o'clock it was an awful chord of many tones.

Horton could thank his lucky stars for Wayne's foresight. If the Intrepid had been exposed to the full power of the gale, no anchor could have held her, and she would have had to fight for her life. But not once did her purse-proud owner question his arrogant creed. He was reasonably comfortable in the warm saloon—the island crags broke the waves, and though the ship was buffeted by the wind, she rolled but little—and he still made light of the skipper's ill-concealed alarm.

But Roy Stuart was not so complacent. He had never been able to harbor an illusion, good or bad, and he knew that this luxurious paneled room was not the citadel it seemed. Yes, they had been too bold. Although his heart never missed a beat, he saw plainly that even a minor mishap, a mere whim of fortune, might hurl them all to irremediable disaster.

Shortly after two Eric rapped on the door and entered. He was in sou-wester, and his eyes had a steely shine. "Conditions seem to be growing worse, not better. If the wind shifts two points more, we'll have to move. Captain sends word for you to get all your party together and stand by for orders. If the wind shifts, we can't run out to sea. We've got to work around the island; and we don't know what's there. But we'll hang here if we can, and make the move in daylight."

When Eric returned to the pilot house he could see the jagged line of the waves against the eastern sky. For a moment he stood listening to the blast. "I see she's shifted another point," he shouted to the grim-faced veteran on the bridge.

"I'm giving her twenty minutes more," the veteran answered. "Is everything ready?"

"Best I could do, sir. Number one lifeboat in fair shape, number two rotten and barely serviceable, and the dory clean gone. That means we couldn't all get off. Blankets, water and bread in one and two."

"How about Sandomar and his crowd?"

"I think most of 'em will keep their heads—they're a hard lot. But one of the Russians, Stronsky, I call him, is acting pretty queer. I saw him as he was going below—his eyes wild, and muttering to himself. I think it's just fright."

"He'll be all right. Ferguson is using him as his assistant—says he knows a Diesel engine inside out."

The twenty minute wait lengthened to an hour. And now there seemed to be a slight lull. Captain Wayne straightened his stooped shoulders.

But it was a false hope. There came a trumpet blast in the sky, swelling and nearing, and a solid wall of wind smote the ship from the northwest. It had jumped two points and the Intrepid's position was no longer tenable.

Waymire shouted an order; it was dispatched to Ferguson by the engine room telegraph. Quarter—half—full speed astern—and the Intrepid was backing out to sea.

Tense and still, Eric stood on the bridge, straining into the murk. His blue northland eyes were the first to catch a pallid gleam on the dark waves five shiplengths ahead.

His cry rose above the blast. "Breakers ahead!"

Waymire was a tried old seaman, and there was hardly a split second between Eric's warning cry and the clang of the engine room telegraph to full speed astern. Even now, good seamanship might save the vessel.

But Wayne's hands had been tied by an arrogant land-lubber. He had braved the reefs not only with rotting lifeboats, but a treacherous mongrel crew. He did not feel the screw back and change. It was he was thunderstruck to hear the gong clang again. And now the dial read not full speed astern, but full speed forward.

In some strange human drama he was never to understand in full, his command had been betrayed. He leaped to the lever, only to find it locked—and as the ship hurried on to meet her death, the old captain of the sea stood helpless as a little child.

At his order the chain of the catted anchor ran out with a roar, but too late. Eric shouted—a cry lost in the blast—and the helmsmen tugged impotently at the wheel.

Then there was nothing to do but wait for the ship to strike.

There were three distinct shocks, the first two light, the third severe enough to hurl Eric against the rail. As he got to his feet, he felt the whole ship vibrate—a curious tremor running through every beam and stake—as a man's body might quiver when it gives up the ghost. Slowly it died away.

As Eric turned to the pilot house, he heard the whistle shriek five times. So the captain perceived the inevitable; this was the signal to abandon ship.

The seamen were already surging up the stairs; and they were not the cool-headed trustees Eric had known of old. He saw their drawn faces in the darkness—he heard their oaths crackling in the wind—so he made ready his big, lithe muscles.

Whom could he trust? Ferguson, of course, but where was Ferguson? Eric recalled the fatal mistake that had wrecked the Intrepid, and began to guess part of the grim truth. The faithful old Scot had not been in command of the engine room when Wayne's order was betrayed. Stronsky, his new assistant, had been acting strangely—and he was known as a saboteur.

Skinner the steward, was a cool hand, and had taken his post at Number One boat, waiting orders, but the three Filipino servants under the black Irishman of Sandomar's gang, Eric detested him for his fawning ways, but he had proved a sound workman, and seemed to be breaking away from the wiles of his pack.

DeValera had not joined the little tense group around Sandomar, eight men in all. Who else was missing from the original ten? Eric's brain was moving swiftly and clear, and without pausing in its work it recorded the fact that Stronsky was still below decks. Sandomar seemed to be plotting with him. Eric's arm might be needed here, in a moment, but now he turned toward the companionway. There was no one to send, so he would go alone to learn why Horton and his party had not yet appeared on deck.

To his tremendous relief, he met them on the stairs. In the deck lights Horton's face showed livid, and he was protesting what he apparently deemed a false alarm, but Nan hurried him on. Eric offered no explanations, but darted back to the boat deck.

And he was sorely needed! The stunned figures of Sandomar's men were coming to life. When Eric saw their faces, he dismissed the idea that they had a hand in the wreck. They were simply reverting to type. Every bond of discipline had snapped free.

Eric saw them moving in a compact mass toward Number One boat. Sandomar was in the lead, hobbling on his gorilla feet, one of his massive hands clutching a short iron bar.

Waymire stood between them and their prize, his eyes blazing. His voice cut through the blast. "What do you fellows want?"

The pale-haired man called Swede answered in hoarse tones. "We're going to take that boat."

"Stand back. The passengers get off first. I'll kill the first man that raises his hand." As he spoke, Wayne drew a heavy revolver and leveled it at Swede's breast.

Waymire meant what he said. Not only Swede, but at least one more would fall before they could silence the gun, and every man knew that he might be that one. They drew back, snarling.

There was only a brief pause. The tempo of events seemed to be immeasurably quickened. Suddenly this drama in the dawn took a new turn. A small bearded figure appeared at the companionway. It was Stronsky—and he was waving his arms.

"I did it—I," Stronsky was yelling. "The ship's sinking, and I did it. I tell you it's so. They won't look down on me any more. The water's rushing in, and I did it, me myself."

He stopped by the rail. Eric would never forget his bulging eyes. "Hurrah for the Union of the Soviet Republics!" he shrieked. It seemed like a crazy nightmare, but there he was, in the clear dawn, a very real and terribly comical figure. "Hurrah for the Working Men's Committee! Hurrah for Stalin! Down with the master class. Down with their million dollar playthings! I myself did it all!"

Then to cap the climax of this fantastic interlude, the little man climbed up the rail, held on a moment with twisted legs, waved his arms in triumph, and then, as though he were avenging himself on his enemies, awkwardly jumped overboard. Awd, vaguely nauseated, Eric peered after him, but he had already disappeared, and the sea drowned his voice.

The sight seemed to stupefy Sandomar's men. Nothing seemed worth fighting for, even life, everything seemed a hideous jest. When Wayne ordered them to take their positions at the davits, Swede, the two Smiths and Cooky came dazedly forward.

At the skipper's command, Horton's party began to scramble in the boat. Mother Horton seemed spry as a girl; pale but calm. Nan took the seat beside her, and Marie Chambon, crying softly, covered at her feet. Roy took a place where he could handle oars.

Meanwhile Horton stood back, his jaws darkly flushed. When Wayne whirled in a fury. "This is an outrage! I won't stand it!"

The time for half-way measures had gone by. It was the owner of the ship who spoke, but it was the captain who answered. "Get in that boat, or we'll throw you in," the old skipper rasped.

"I refuse. It's a false alarm—" "You old fool, don't you know she's going down in ten minutes?" Wayne half pushed, half hurled the irate millionaire into the boat.

Reaching for his hand, Nan drew him onto the thwart. His face turned ashen and his eyes glazed as he glanced toward the settling stern. He and Stronsky had something in common, after all; they were both the butts of a sardonic jesting fate.

The boat, though the best of the three, was small, and would hold only nine.

"Get in there, Ericsson, and take command."

Eric glanced toward the island. The waves were not yet invincible; strong rowers in a seaworthy boat could win to the shelter of the cape. "Send Skinner," he protested rapidly. "Let me stay and help you. Anyway, I want to go below and look around for Ferguson."

"Ferguson's dead—murdered or drowned. Get in that boat, I'm the master of this ship."

Eric took his place; Skinner and some of Sandomar's gang began to lower the boat.

When it was almost out of reach, Wayne leaned over and dropped something heavy at Eric's feet. To his amazement, he saw that it was a pearl-handled single-action revolver, the same that the skipper had brandished a few minutes before.

TIDE OF MIGRATION
GROWING IN NATION

Hard Times Cause Trek of Americans.

Washington. — Government census officials expect to record for the last four years the largest migration of population in this nation's history. The economic tide has swept millions out of cities in search of employment or subsistence, on to farms, into suburban areas to do part-time farming. The movement has not been all one way, says the New York Times. From farms and small towns many people have gone to other places in search of jobs or to share in the organized relief in large communities.

Farm Population Grows.

The agricultural census to be taken in January is expected to show the largest farm population yet enumerated, exceeding the peak figure of 32,500,000 persons estimated as of January 1, 1934. That total included only persons on commercial farms, as distinguished from those living on plots of land too small to be classed as farms by the census. The migration from cities, towns and villages to farms has slowed down in 1933 and was more than offset by the migration from farms to cities, towns and villages, but the increase in births over deaths raised the farm population figure to a record high.

Had there been no economic depression, the census officials would have calculated on the basis of past performance that approximately one out of every four native white persons in the United States is living in a place other than where he was born.

The figure for 1930 was 23.4 persons out of every 100. It has not been more than 24 out of 100 for less than 21.5 out of 100 at any decennial census date since the year 1870. Outside the depression period the percentage figures have not changed much in 60 years.

Move to Farms.

Much of the earlier migration from New England and Middle Atlantic states was to new farming opportunities in states farther west. A considerable part of the earlier movement from older Cotton Belt states to newer ones across the Mississippi river was of similar character. But from 1900 to 1930 there was a rapidly increasing movement into states where non-agricultural industries were making enormous growth, as in New York, Ohio, Michigan, Florida and California.

Although the mobility of the native white population in the mass had not changed much in 60 years, the migration has curved sharply up or down, or fluctuated widely.

Soviet to Make Gasoline From Peat on Big Scale

Leningrad.—Extraction of gasoline from peat under conditions that make large-scale production practical was announced recently. Such gasoline has just been used in an automobile test run from Leningrad to Moscow and return.

Experts say the new fuel gave more power than ordinary gasoline, made no smoke, caused engines to run more smoothly and cost only half as much to produce as gasoline from petroleum.

The process was recently developed at the Leningrad Industrial Institute by a large research staff headed by Professor Yakovlev. Engineers foresee a great future for this fuel as there are beds containing 2,000,000,000 tons of peat in the Leningrad district.

The commissariat for heavy industry has allotted funds for an experimental refinery.

Chair-Sitting Sleuth Recovers Wrist Watch

Boston.—Without moving from his chair at Warren avenue police station, Patrolman John Hourihan recovered a wrist watch valued at $5.00.

Mrs. Dorothy Spaulding reported she had lost her diamond-encrusted watch in a taxicab between a Stewart street garage and her home.

"Try turning the clothes you were inside out," suggested Hourihan.

Later Mrs. Spaulding advised him that she found the watch in the lining of a sleeve of her evening wrap.

"How in the world did you know it was there?" she asked.

"Intuition," replied the policeman. "I remember the time I found my own wrist watch inside the sleeve of a shirt I just took off."

Suit Against College Filed Over Stone Wall

Worcester, Mass.—A 378-foot stone wall was moved by mistake from the farm of Fred E. Maynard, according to a suit filed here.

Maynard claimed he presented an old wall to his property to Assumption college to be used in a new college building.

College workmen overlooked the old wall, he alleged, and instead moved his all-important boundary wall.

Inasmuch as the stone already was part of the foundations of the new building, Maynard asked to be reimbursed in the amount of $5,000.

With the Extension Agents — And The — Knox Lincoln Farm Bureau

Agricultural

Meetings on Corn-Hog programs were held by the Extension Service this week. A. D. Nutting and Donald Corbett of the Extension Service presented the material. Meetings were held at the Court House, Rockland, and Newcastle engine house, Newcastle. Many questions were asked regarding the processing tax on hogs.

A series of poultry meetings will start next week. Tuesday an all-day meeting will be held at West Alna Grange hall. H. L. Richardson, poultry specialist, will assist County Agent Wentworth with the meeting. Afternoon meetings will be held in Orff's Corner, Community hall, Thursday; Whitefield, Union hall, Friday; and Jefferson, schoolhouse, Saturday.

The subjects which will be discussed are 1934 poultry accounts, 1935 outlook, poultry house ventilation and Barnacks House test. Everyone interested in poultry should attend these meetings.

The accredited list is now available. Before buying chicks be sure they are from tested stock. Good results are being reported by poultrymen who bought local chicks last year. It is a good plan to buy chicks from breeders within the county or state.

Fifty farm inventories have been started by farmers in this district.

4-H Club News

Thelma Steer, club reporter of the new Cabotus 4-H Club of Round Pond, tells of her club's progress. Some of the articles made by these girls before Christmas are string bags, pillows, holder and pad sets, stuffed toys, and one girl made a pair of overalls for her baby brother. At present they are working on a club quilt which they will sell and use the money to attend the annual county contest next fall. Plans have already been made to make their club uniforms so they will have them completed for the 4-H field day in June. Mrs. Ellen Francis is the new leader.

The Ambitious Maids of Union have reorganized their 4-H club with Mrs. Bertha Meserve, local leader, and these officers: President, Norma McEdward; vice president, Edith Howard; secretary, Esther Young; treasurer, Helen Mitchell; color bearer, Arlene Esancy; cheer leader, Phyllis Lucas.

The two oldest 4-H clubs in Knox-Lincoln county: Happy Homemakers of Alna and Pine 4-H club of Camden, recently reorganized for their tenth year. Each year both clubs have won their seal of achievement, thus working for the tenth seal this year. The Happy Homemakers of Alna elected these officers: President John Graffam; vice president, Kenneth Bradstreet; secretary, Margaret Graffam; treasurer, Loring Ederly; color bearer, Ralph Damon; cheer leader, Harry Kierstead and song leader, Kenneth Bradstreet. Bernal Jewett is the leader of this club with John Graffam, his assistant. The officers of the Pine 4-H of Camden are: President Doris Monroe; vice president, Ruth Owen; secretary, Velma Grey; treasurer, Lucille Leach; color bearer, Blanche Leonard; cheer leader, Janet Monroe; club reporter, Pauline Bowden and Priscilla Bates.

The Twin Village 4-H of Damariscotta and Good Workers of Whitefield are working for their ninth seal of achievement. The Twin Village 4-H reorganized early with Mrs. Celia Bragdon, leader and Miss Charlotte Bragdon, her assistant. Three meetings have already been held with eight projects enrolled and program of work completed for 1935. The Good Workers of Whitefield recently reorganized, with Abbie Grant President; Margaret Waller, vice president; Helen Law, secretary; Lydia Brown, treasurer; Althea Eastman, color bearer; and Barbara Chase, cheer leader. Mrs. Clara Law is the club leader, having sent in her program of work for the year and has nine projects enrolled.

Sheepscott 4-H with Mrs. Ruth Carney, new 4-H leader, reorganized with Audrey Verney president; Muriel Cunningham, vice president; Marjorie Doe, secretary and treasurer; and Madelyn Verney, color bearer. This is its third year of club work.

The first meeting of the Lucky Boys 4-H club of South Thomaston was held Jan. 10, with leader Percy Young; assistant leader, John Monroe, and Miss Ruth Clark present. The officers were decided thus: President, Enrico Laaksonen; vice president, Edwin Tyler; secretary, Parker Jackson; treasurer, Warren Ulmer; cheer leader, Albert

Davis, Jr.; color bearer, Carl Rogers and Robert Ulmer; club reporter, Ralph Tyler.

As result of the four planning meetings held the past week, these project leaders were elected: Friendship, chairman, Mrs. Susan Wotton; secretary, Mrs. Gertrude Oliver; Mrs. Carrie MacFarland; home management, Mrs. Bertha Jameson; Damariscotta, chairman, Mrs. Lily Waltz; secretary, Mrs. Mary Bumps; clothing, Mrs. Viola M. Lucier; foods, Mrs. Dorothy Weeks; home management, Mrs. Christine Hunter; annual meeting chairman, Mrs. Matilda Woodbury, Union, chairman, Mrs. Maud Calderwood; secretary, Mrs. Ida Goss; clothing, Mrs. Alida Foss; foods, Mrs. Belle Kenniston; home management, Mrs. Frank Calderwood, Appleton, chairman, Mrs. Alice Hall; secretary, Mrs. Helen Gushee; clothing, Mrs. Inez Arrington; foods, Mrs. Grace Brown; home management, Mrs. Hazle Perry.

Miss Edna Cobb, State Home Management Specialist is to hold two meetings on "The Kitchen, the Heart of the House" in Boothbay, Tuesday, and Edgecomb, Wednesday. Both will be held at Grange halls. At Boothbay Mrs. Jennie Stover and Mrs. Margaret Boyd are on the dinner committee. At Edgecomb Mrs. Frank H. Stone and Mrs. Madge Campbell are the housekeepers.

"Each kitchen is an individual problem," says Mrs. Cobb, "but there are certain fundamental requirements or standards that the family must have in mind if they are planning to remodel their kitchen." It is with these principles in kitchen planning that these meetings deal.

For the past year the Friendship Farm Bureau, with a membership of 20 had an average attendance of 15 at each of 12 meetings. Members having a perfect attendance were Mrs. Susan Wotton, chairman, and Mrs. Olive Noyes. Those missing one meeting were: Mrs. William Lewis, Mrs. Mary Wotton and Mrs. Roscoe Simmons.

Three training classes are to be held next week on Raising and Preserving Food at Home. Miss Therese Wood, State food specialist, will hold those at Wiscasset and Camden. The home demonstration agent, Miss Lawrence, will hold that at Damariscotta. The following food project leaders and some one else will attend each of these training classes and learn how to conduct the meeting and then will return to their respective communities and hold a similar meeting.

Jan. 24—Wiscasset at Congregational vestry, Montsweag, Mrs. Alice Colby; Edgecomb, Mrs. Parker Boudin; Boothbay, Mrs. Grace Reed; Sheepscott, Mrs. Geraldine Ross; Whitefield, Mrs. Hattie Hausen.

Jan. 25—Camden at Grange hall, South Thomaston, Mrs. Helen Rackliff; Rockland, Mrs. Eunice Morse; Camden, Mrs. Emelyn Bridges; Rockport, Mrs. Inez Packard; Hope, Mrs. Marjorie Beverage; Friendship, Mrs. Carrie McFarland.

Jan. 26—Damariscotta, at Biscay community house, Damariscotta, Mrs. Dorothy Weeks; Nobleboro, Mrs. Mildred Ricker; Bristol, Mrs. Roxie Weeks; So. Bristol, Mrs. Wintie Russell; Orff's Corner, Mrs. Amber Childs.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD UNUSUAL ANGLES

YOU will be amazed how an odd slant or angle will make an interesting picture of a commonplace scene. Like so many other things we do day after day, we can easily get into a rut in taking pictures. Usually we take just the normal, conventional view—straight at the subject—as if it were a sacred rule of picture-making to do this. It is not at all necessary to take pictures that way every time. Variety is the spice of life photography!

Street scenes—the scurrying crowds, the repair gang at work, the traffic jam—are usually more striking if taken from a high level. We are, of course, familiar with the reverse view—the pictures of skyscrapers with the camera pointed directly up. The buildings appear to be leaning backwards and about to topple off their foundations. Such pictures are frankly intended to be bizarre distortions, but if you like them, by all means "shoot" them. Some of them will at least be funny.

Parade scenes are effective if the camera is held low, or on the ground, for you will get the effect of feet marching into the camera—realism. This applies, too, in taking pictures of running or trotting races.

Swimming pictures are better if the camera is at a high level and you "shoot" almost directly down on the subject. From this angle you get the ripples of the water and the light playing on them. Another out of the ordinary picture is that of action on a toboggan-slide, such as you see at bathing beaches and amusement parks. Get set with your camera at a high level within range of the spot where the toboggan strikes the water. When you snap the picture you

Alvary Visits Art Museum and Is Awed By Millions It Represents

St. Pete, Jan. 13

The Ringling Museum of Art, not just another museum, but no doubt the best in this country, and one of the finest in the world. It can claim this distinction because of the 700 originals of old masters which it houses.

Here are some of the oldest and rarest paintings in the world: works of art which Mr. Ringling bought in foreign countries, and which these countries are now striving to get back. The amount of cash represented is staggering. I stood in one room, and the four walls around me were hung with paintings valued at a million dollars. The value of the museum is set at $45,000,000.

The paintings are grouped according to the period in art which they represent. There are 22 rooms holding, besides paintings, statuary and wood-carvings. Here are a few highlights of my visit; marble pillars quarried and carved before Christ, the gold room from a palace at Versailles, France, a doorway through which Napoleon had passed, pictures hundreds of years old with the most beautiful colors, a floor 700 years old made of lignum-vitae.

The formal garden is also high ranking in the world for its beauty. The terraces, the arrangement of the beds, the fountains and statuary, the pool wherein swims a flock of black swans, and over all the 19 ton bronze statue of David, by Michael Angelo, these features bring words of praise from all visitors.

Now let's go to a place where the Master artist shows His handiwork; an aviary of 500 birds; and only three blocks from my desk.

Here is a man's hobby which has almost grown into the big business class. How will you have your parakeets shaded? Green, yellow, mauve, turquoise, cobalt blue or white? He has all colors.

Of now we come to a bird Thomaston—and solitary confinement. A male toupial, alone, disgraced, who starved his wife to death.

But here is a delicious little fellow—a strawberry finch; just the size and color of the real bird.

And now a formal party—Java rice birds, whose sleek, grey coat, with a white spot at the breast really looks like a tuxedo. These birds are always thus clothed; their plumage never ruffles.

In the very heart of St. Pete is a pond—small but very pretty—named Mirror Lake. Rather a strong reminder of Knox County.

POINSETTIA PLANT SOURCE OF RUBBER

Discovery of Chemist May Revolutionize Industry.

Washington.—Discovery by a heretofore obscure St. Louis chemist that the poinsettia can produce more than 6,000 pounds of rubber an acre in eight months, holds promise of revolutionizing the rubber industry.

If the hopes of Herman E. Pitman, the chemist, are realized, the price of rubber, which, under the British agreement, may reach $1 per pound, can be produced in this country at not more than seven cents a pound.

The discovery that a species of poinsettia can be made to supply 60 per cent of America's consumption was made by Pitman after years of experimenting with various plants. During this time he had closely followed similar efforts of Thomas A. Edison, Harvey Firestone, John Burroughs and Henry Ford to extract rubber from milkweed, goldenrod, palmettos and palms.

Rubber in Sap.
Examining a poinsettia given to him a year ago as a Christmas decoration, Pitman found that the sap or latex contained a small percentage of rubber. This specimen proved too expensive for commercial development and its use deemed impracticable because the sap soured in a few hours.

Experimentation with other varieties of this plant occupied the chemist for some months and eventually brought the discovery that the mixture of a cheap chemical element with the sap eliminated the rancidity and presented a latent rubber which could be produced at a nominal cost.

An analytical chemist in Washington carried the tests further and found that the plant produced juice containing 60 to 65 per cent rubber.

100,000 Acres Ready.
Retaining a Washington lawyer to patent the process, Pitman proceeded with his plans to produce poinsettia on a large scale. Already 100,000 acres of land in the Everglades has been placed at his disposal and will be planted to poinsettia in February.

Against a yield of 6,000.65 pounds an acre from Pitman's poinsettia, in eight months, the rubber plantations of India and the Dutch East Indies produce only 1,300 pounds an acre and can be harvested only once in ten years.

Those close to the rubber industry see in Pitman's discovery a drop in rubber prices far below any scale known since the beginning of the rubber industry.

Motor License Plate Colors for Year Told

Washington.—Thirty-three states and the District of Columbia will change color schemes on their 1935 license plates, an American Automobile association survey has disclosed. Black, green and blue will predominate on the new plates, the A. A. A. said. Thirteen states will retain their 1934 color motifs, reversing numerals and background. Arizona and West Virginia, however, will not alter their present scheme.

Black and yellow, found by the bureau of standards to offer good visibility, will be used in five states—namely, Colorado, Florida, Kentucky, South Dakota, and West Virginia.

Four states will employ white on green, white on blue, and black on white motifs, while three will use orange on black, blue on white, and white on black.

Arkansas plates will have blue on cream; Delaware, colonial blue on old gold; Indiana, black on robin's egg blue; and Minnesota gold on maroon.

The District of Columbia, which has favored a black and yellow combination for seven years, will have a green on white motif in 1935.

Fence Post Trees Now Used to Make Violins

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Back in '98, young Farmer M. J. Smith planted a row of catalpa trees on his place down south of Hog creek. He intended to cut them down in a few years and make fence posts with the wood.

Most of them went that way. But a few were left standing. The farmer, now sixty-one and retired, has started chopping them down to make, not fence posts, but violins. It was just a notion he had that the tough white wood would make good sounding boxes for fiddles.

The violins he makes have an excellent tone.

Mustard Weed Prevents Erosion in Fire Areas

Missoula, Mont.—"Mustard plants" may be applied to fire-swept acres of Montana forest lands to prevent flood erosion. The practice of planting mustard weed in burned-over areas has proved highly efficient in checking floods in California.

United States foresters here may decide to follow the California program to launch a speedy revegetation program, according to advices from Washington.

The children's First Communion class will meet for instructions with Fr. Franklin at the church today at 3 o'clock.

A contract party will be held at the parish hall Tuesday at 7:45 and the series award will then be announced.

VINALHAVEN

Rev. N. P. Atwood, pastor of Union Church will speak Sunday on "Peter" at morning service. After the usual opening of prayer and Scripture from Luke 15, the choir will present a program of service and song with Miss Gertrude Vinal as reader.

Marguerite Chapter O.E.S. has postponed its annual installation of officers from Jan. 21 to Feb. 4, owing to the illness of several officers.

The fifth annual Vinalhaven banquet and dance will be held Jan. 26 at 6:45 at 20th Century Club, 3 Joy St., Boston. Anyone interested is asked to notify A. B. Brown, 15 Queensbury St., Suite 1, Boston.

There will be a 6 o'clock covered dish supper at Ocean Bound Rebskah Lodge next Tuesday.

Postmasters throughout the United States will cash the interest bearing coupons of Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation.

AT THE STRAND SUNDAY AND MONDAY

Bing Crosby and Kitty Carlisle start a glee club of their own by the addition of Pete the Parrot in "Here Is My Heart," coming Sunday and Monday. "Here Is My Heart" is the story of a millionaire crooner who turned waiter to court a Russian princess, with a great deal of resultant comedy.

There are plenty of laughs in "The Night Is Young," romantic new musical hit, showing Tuesday only. With Ramon Novarro and the lovely English star, Evelyn Laye, filling the role of leads, the supporting contingent is enlivened by such well-known laugh producers as the sony-faced Charles Butterworth, the rollicking Una Merkel, the inimitable Edward Everett Horton and amusing Herman Bing. Butterworth not only plays a comedy high spot in the picture, but he sings as well. It is the first time that the popular player has warbled on the screen. He and Miss Merkel sing a duet which is said to be something worth hearing!—adv.

NORTH WARREN

Stillman Whitney narrowly escaped serious injury last week when a tree fell on him. The accident resulted in considerable lameness but Mr. Whitney has now recovered.

Mrs. William Antilla recently visited Mable Crawford, and Ermina Williams was a visitor there last Thursday.

Florence Wyllie is at the home of Will Smith in Union during illness in the family.

Mrs. Emma Whitney passed Thursday with her son Clarence Whitney in Union.

WARREN

Mrs. Frank Erickson of East Warren is boarding with Mrs. Gertrude Starrett.

Mrs. Anna Starrett was honor guest at a dinner party Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Ida Russell and daughter Mrs. Carrie Smith. Other guests were Mrs. Florence Gardiner and Mrs. Nettie Vinal.

Loring Packard is confined to his home by illness. His sister Mrs. Martha Wade of Waldoboro is caring for him.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Watts of Rockland were among those from Rockland who attended funeral services for Miss Agnes Stevens at White Oak Grange hall.

The Dorcas Circle of King's Daughters will meet Monday afternoon with Mrs. Ella Cunningham.

Ivy Chapter Installation

Officers-elect and appointed of Ivy Chapter, O.E.S., were installed Tuesday evening. Mrs. Eunice W. Larrabee of Belfast, the associate grand matron of the Grand Chapter of Maine, was installing officer, assisted by Mrs. Carrie R. Smith of Warren, district deputy grand matron as grand marshal, and Mrs. Nettie Jameson of Warren, grand chaplain. Mrs. Avis Norwood was organist. Each member was privileged to invite one guest and a goodly number gathered in the Masonic hall to witness the ceremony. Officers installed were:

Worthy matron, Mrs. Esther Starrett; worthy patron, Elbert Starrett; associate matron, Mrs. Constance MacPhail; associate patron, Albert E. MacPhail; secretary, Mrs. Laura Starrett; treasurer, Miss Tena McCallum; conductress, Mrs. Bernice Evelyn Sawyer; chaplain, Miss M. Jameson; associate conductress, Miss Grace Walker; marshal, Mrs. Rosina Buber; organist, Mrs. Avis Norwood; Ruth, Mrs. Grace Wyllie; Esther, Mrs. Margaret Sawyer; Electa, Miss Hilda Aspy; warden, Mrs. Jessie Walker; sentinel, J. O. Jameson. Mrs. Carrie Smith elected Admon. and Mrs. Louise Drewett, Martha, will be installed at a later date.

Mrs. Larrabee, dressed in black lace, and Mrs. Carrie Smith in lace of a dark red hue, with shoulder bouquet, made an attractive foil for the white dresses of the officers. Mrs. Larrabee was introduced by the retiring matron, Mrs. Rosina Buber, who later presented flowers to those who had served with her. Mrs. Larrabee presented the Star Points with flowers.

The retiring matron, Mrs. Buber and patron, Albert MacPhail received from their co-officers, carnations and Mrs. Esther Starrett gave to the retiring matron and patron, the past officers' jewel. Mrs. Starrett also presented in behalf of the order, a gift to Mrs. Larrabee for her services as installing officer.

Mrs. Avis Norwood and Mrs. Carrie Smith, entertainment committee, secured these numbers for a program: Vocal duet, "Alice, Where Art Thou?" by Chester Wyllie and Charles Wilson; soprano solo, "Boy O Mine," Mrs. Doris Overlock; humorous reading, Miss Ida Stevens; mixed quartet selection, "Juanita," Mrs. Doris Overlock, Mrs. Avis Norwood, Chester Wyllie, and Charles Wilson; accompanists were Mrs. Avis Norwood and Mrs. Chester Wyllie.

Guests were present from Waldoboro, Bothbay Harbor, Belfast and Thomaston, D.D.G.M. Mrs. Alice F. Dodge being among those from Bothbay Harbor.

Helping the President

My Dear President Roosevelt: Please have my endorsed 5 cents open your 24th national Birth day to fight Infants Paralysis drive.

Little Theresa McGinty, aged 6, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who sent a bright new nickel special delivery to President Roosevelt, following his announcement that he would lend his 1935 birthday anniversary to a nation-wide party, proceeds of which will go toward aiding infantile paralysis victims all over the nation.

Col. Henry L. Doherty, chairman of the 1935 Birthday Ball for the President has announced that funds raised this year at parties in more than 5,000 communities throughout the nation, will be divided, following a suggestion made by the President.

Seventy per cent will be used for the rehabilitation of handicapped children within the community raising the funds or within the nearest geographic unit of which the community is a part. The other 30 per cent will be turned over to President Roosevelt to be used by the National Commission for Infantile Paralysis Research.

Hard-Boiled Sand Hogs Defy "The Bends" As They Drive New Tunnel Under Hudson

WANT to get $13 a day for 2 hours' work? All right! Apply for a job as a "sand hog" on the new Manhattan-Weehauken Hudson River Tunnel, $37,500,000 project now under construction by the Port of New York Authority with PWA funds.

But before you lead away this particular gift horse, examine his dental work carefully! Although they work short hours for high pay, sand hogs—those tough, hard-boiled men who work below water-level where tremendous air pressures hold back the river—are required by law to wear at all times a badge on which is printed:

"Port of New York Authority, compressed air employee. If ill rush by ambulance to hospital lock at 33rd Street and 11th Avenue, Manhattan, or south of Pier K at Hudson River, Weehauken."

When working under the abnormal pressures which are necessary to keep out the water in the chamber more than 100 feet below tugs and ferries on the river's surface, the blood becomes surcharged with air as it passes through the lungs. Yet pressure in the air chamber prevents bubbles from forming, just as the pressure within a bottle of soda water prevents it from fizzing until it is uncapped. But if a man emerges suddenly from a high pressure chamber into normal atmospheric conditions, the air compressed in his blood is released, and begins to form in bubbles, like soda when the cap is removed.

Bubbles Cause "Bends"
This bubbling of the blood is the cause of that unique affliction, the "bends," the dread of all compressed air workers. Its manifestations are many, ranging from a staggering dizziness to excruciating pain when these bubbles lodge in the joints, and occasional paralysis and sudden death if the brain or heart is affected.

Gradual lowering of the pressure in a decompression lock allows the compressed air within the body to escape slowly without formation of bubbles. Rate of decompression depends on conditions under which the sand hogs have been working, but at a pressure of 35 pounds per square inch, 35 minutes is allowed for pressure reduction.

Short periods of work under compressed air are necessitated because of the danger of taking an excess amount of nitrogen in solution by the body tissues. The higher percentages of oxygen in compressed air forms another great hazard—fire. Under a pressure of 40 pounds per square inch, a lighted cigarette burns not completely in a second or two and ordinarily slightly inflammable material goes up like tinder.

Required by law to furnish hot coffee to compressed air workers leaving decompression lock, the Port of New York Authority serves beverage that's "good to the last drop." Engineers and sand hogs building new tunnel, to connect mid-town Manhattan and Weehauken, N. J. in 1937, agree it hits the spot after one-hour shift in 37-foot air pressure chamber more than 100 feet below surface of the Hudson.

In addition to the basic precaution of gradual decompression, sand hogs must observe other rules to minimize danger of "bends," says Crandall. "Heavy drinking or smoking is strictly taboo, as are irregular eating habits and lack of normal sleep and rest."

Despite all precautions, however, sand hogs are occasionally stricken. The only treatment is to rush the man to the hospital lock, where he is put under reduced air pressure which again forces the bubbles into solution in the blood. Then the man is again decompressed very gradually to prevent formation of new bubbles.

Still want that job working two hours a day for $13? They'll be working under air for more than a year longer and you'll find construction headquarters at the Manhattan end of the tunnel. Just walk right past the hospital lock and knock on the door.

LARGEST EVER CONSTRUCTED

THIS giant press, the largest of its kind and one of 18 similar machines purchased recently by Fisher Body, is used to draw and flange the one-piece solid steel "turret top" of the new Body by Fisher that will make its appearance on certain General Motors car models at the turn of the year. Designed and constructed especially for the purpose, the huge press, through its triple action, exerts a pressure of 1,550 tons, or 3,900,000 pounds. It weighs 500 tons, stands more than four stories high, and utilizes dies that tip the scales at from 36 to 64 tons.

REED-STITES

A Kentucky Marriage Of Much Interest To Rockport Readers

A wedding of interest to many friends in this locality was that of John Frederick Reed and Miss Mildred Stites, which occurred Dec. 29, at Louisville, Ky. Mr. Reed is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall E. Reed (Linthe) Ripley formerly of Rockport of Roxbury, Me. The Kentucky Era had the following article in regard to the event:

"The altar at which Miss Stites and Mr. Reed assumed their marriage vows was arranged in the paneled curve of the beautiful spiral stairway in the reception hall of the home, a soft banking of smiles forming a soft background. Palms and ferns fringed the altar, and at either side were placed tall white candelabra, each bearing seven lighted cathedral tapers. Smiles entwined the banisters of the curving stairs, and gleaming tapers shown through the vines from three holders placed upon the steps. Candles from other vantage points of the hall added further illumination, while a color note was lent by a huge bowl of pink roses, on the console table.

"The bridegroom entered the hall with the Rev. A. R. Kasy of Louisville, the officiant, and the Rev. J. W. Wedon of this city, who assisted in performing the impressive rite by which the lives of the young couple were joined together. Miss Stites, who came to the altar on the arm of her father to be given in marriage, wore a frock of brown wool crepe, made with a collar and cuffs of bands of green and cream, stitched in close rows of orange braid.

"Mrs. Reed is the youngest daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frank M. Stites, and is one of the city's most talented young women. After finishing the local public schools, she attended Bethel College, graduating there in the class of 1931. The following year she entered Duke University, where she soon became a leader in student activities until her graduation in 1933. Since that time she has continued her studies at the University, where she was the winner of flattering scholarships, and now occupies a position as an assistant in the school's botany department.

"Mr. Reed is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall E. Reed of Roxbury, where he attended the local schools and is a graduate of Dartmouth College. At present he is also an assistant in the botany department of Duke where he is working for his degree as Doctor of Philosophy. He is a member of Phi Sigma, national honorary biological fraternity, and is actively associated in the leading circles of the university's educational and social projects.

"Immediately following their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Reed left for Durham, N. C., where they will make their home."

At The High School

(By the Pupils)

Two motion pictures of geographical interest, "Nipigon Trails," a picturesque canoe trip down the famous Nipigon River and "Across the Seven Seas," a trip through Java with instructive scenes on the little known Cavaia Plant and the making of tapioca, were shown to the seventh and eighth grades Tuesday, in the balcony of the auditorium, with Joseph Emery, Jr., operating the school machine.

Two musical units of this school, the Girls' Glee Club and the orchestra, were guest artists of the Rotary Club at the Thorndike yesterday. The Glee Club, directed by Mrs. Esther Rogers, sang "Wake, Miss Lindy," "The Green Cathedral," and "Little Wheel A-Turnin'." The orchestra, led by Principal Libby, played three selections, "The Flag of Truce," "Ozda," and "The Animation," the last two illustrating two types of dance music known as the Schottische and the Orientale.

Rehearsals for "I Like Your Nerve," the junior class play to be given in connection with the Kippy Carnival and coached by Miss Parker, are showing good progress. Workers "behind the scenes" have this week been chosen as follows: Business manager, Frances Storer; assistants, Dorothy Boynton and Edward Hayes; costume mistress, Catherine Chisholm; property manager, Sanford Delano, a student, Raymond Jordan; usher chairman, Glenna Rankin; publicity manager, Thelma Whitehouse; electrician, Robert Chandler; assistant, Francis Havener; stage manager, Ralph Clark, assistant, Albert Levensaler.

Policemen chosen for duty next week in the junior high are Clyde Ashton, Joseph Jokl, Gordon Burgess, Robert Stevens, William Payson, Henry Dodge and Solomon Cohen.

The interclass winter sports meet takes place this afternoon at Community Park, with Principal Blaisdell, Mr. McCarty, Mr. Bowden and Coach Szak as judges. Events for the boys include the ski dash, snow shoe dash, cross country ski, cross country snow shoe, ski obstacle race, snow shoe obstacle race and relay. Skating events will be once around, three times around, six times around, ten times around, and relay. Winning contestants of this meet will qualify for the county meet to be held Jan. 26. Joe Emery, Jr., is manager of this winter sports team, with Clarence Peterson and Reginald McLaughlin as his assistants.

"A Day Without Latin," a playlet in four scenes showing the value of Latin, was presented at Tuesday's assembly, supervised by Miss Keller, and coached by Mr. Levensaler. In this play, announced by Clarence Peterson, the father (Dick Edingwood) wishes his son Bob (Dick Marsh) to take the Latin course in high school, but the thirteen-year-old son pretends to take a more "practical" course. Whereupon his father in conjunction with his wife (Ruth Thomas) and his daughter (Dorothy Sherman) shows the practicality of Latin by getting Bob to go without anything derived from a Latin word for one day. He finds that he has to do without almost everything he wants all day, "no cap, no bike, not much to eat, no motor ride or radio, and not even a trip to the library." After one day without Latin, Bob is convinced that Latin as a subject is "practical," and registers in the Latin course. The cast, members of the freshman Latin class, so cleverly presented the play that the audience was left, as they should be, quite Latin-convinced.

Two songs, "P. S. I Love You," and "The Object of My Affection," were sung in a delightful manner by a quartet composed of Margaret Dunton, Rose Flanagan, Frances Storer and Mary Havener. Songs played by Robert Hill on an ornate and fascinating looking accordion concluded an enjoyable program.

The hockey team, with Coach Szak, journeyed to Hebron yesterday to play its first game of the season with the Hebron Reserves. Those taking the trip were Captain Sam Glover, Manager James Accardi, Dick French, Bob Crane, Herbert Poland, Sam Gray, Sidney Harden, Edward Childs, James Grover, Norman Webber, Edward Peaslee, Gordon Flint and Dick Harden.

New English literature books entitled "The Last of the Mohicans," and "The Virginian," are delighting the freshman classes.

Junior high assembly, under the direction of Miss Thompson, featured two short plays by pupils of Division 8-3. The cast of "The New Teacher," the first of the plays, consisted of Priscilla Staples, Patricia Hall, Maxine Perry, Madoyn Mc-

GUARDIANS OF OUR COAST

What our lightkeepers and coast guardsmen are doing to protect coastwise shipping by day and by night. The day's news from many lonely outposts along Maine's waterfront.

From the hilltop looks the steeple,
And the lighthouse from the sand;
And the scattered pines are waving
Their farewell from the land.
One glance, my lady, behind us,
For the homes we leave are sigh.
We take the change and chances
Of the ocean and the sky.
—Whittier.

Two Bush Light

Possibly we are a bit late in wishing everyone along the coast a Happy New Year, but we do, and also we wish to think Capt. Wincapaw for having made our Christmas a merrier one.

Keeper Smith passed 15-days leave with his family at Owl's Head.

Roger and Donald Smith and Maurice Barter of Isle au Haut spent Christmas with their mother Mrs. Smith in Owl's Head. Roger will remain there until spring, the others having returned after New Years.

Elliott Smith substituted for the Keeper during his absence.

Assistant Keeper Batty's boat which was at Spruce Head, recently sank, requiring the services of the coast guard to raise it and pump it out.

Mrs. Batty and family passed the holiday at the Light.

Guests entertained at a party given at the Smith home while Mr. Smith was ashore were Mr. and Mrs. Chester Philbrook, Mr. and Mrs. Arrey, Mrs. Hammar, Mildred Hammar and Gene Emery. Refreshments were served.

Mrs. Smith and sons Elliott, Roland and Thomas were visiting last weekend at the Light.

Miss Olive Carnes of Rockland spent the weekend with Carla Smith at Owl's Head.

Assistant Keeper Batty recently visited with his family at Spruce Head.

Little River

Greetings to everyone along the coast.

Florence Corbett and Ruth Corbett have returned to Machias to resume studies at the high school and in all probability will not visit the island again until the end of this term.

Emily and Kathleen are boarding with Mrs. Arthur McLoon at the village while attending school.

Myron Corbett has a position as bookkeeper for the Bangor Tallow Co., and likes his work very much.

The fishermen are having a hard winter for their work, as the storms and high winds make the setting of their gear most uncertain.

We were greatly pleased to have Capt. Wincapaw visit us at Christmas, it being the first visit he has ever made at this place.

We are wondering if this month is April or January for we have had pouring rain or fog for a week—very unusual for this time of year. What a contrast to last year's weather.

Mrs. Corbett recently attended the public installation of officers at the Grange.

Purcell and Neil Corbett will engage in the cutting of firewood as soon as the weather clears and the ground freezes.

The Standard Oil boat passed here yesterday, going west.

Hope this finds everyone along the coast enjoying a prosperous New Year.

Perkins Island

Fred Osgood made a brief visit to Bath last week, calling on Dr. Hibbs for dental work.

Francis Luke, who has been guest of the family, expects to be recalled soon to his work in Massachusetts.

We express thanks to the Maine Sea Coast Missionary Society through Rev. Orville Gupill for the Christmas gifts sent to us and we wish the society a most successful year.

Lorrimer Brackett of Monhegan visited over the weekend with Fred Osgood and his parents.

Mrs. Osgood was in Bath Friday and found the traveling there very slippery.

The Ladies' Aid at Parker Head resumed meetings Jan. 8.

We were sorry to learn that Keeper Alonzo Morong has been ill and was taken to the hospital at Bath. A good recovery is wished him.

You are right, "Burnt Coat Harbor," you can't go wrong with La Touraine coffee. It is of high quality.

Fred Osgood attended Wednesday evening a party at Mrs. Harry Mank's, Sr.

We would be pleased to hear from Brown's Head Light as news from that point has not appeared for a long time. Wish you might see our cat.

Portland Head

Charles Sterling was a recent guest of his brother, R. T. Sterling.

Last Monday was just another stormy wash-day—a real winter day.

The Hills and Mrs. Robinson recently called on Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Goff and son Richard at Westbrook.

F. O. Hilt, Mrs. Hilt and Mrs. Lucy E. Robinson motored Sunday to Groveland, calling on Mr. and Mrs. Henry Osborne.

Mrs. R. T. Sterling entertained last Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Dow of Portland, Mrs. Charles Sterling, Misses Elizabeth and Marion Sterling of Peaks Island, A. W. Hathorn, R. T. Sterling, Robert Sterling, Jr., and Adora Hilt. The evening was spent in conversation and playing bridge. A buffet lunch was served by Mrs. Martha Sterling.

Mrs. Martha Sterling visited her sister Mrs. Charles Sterling at Peaks Island Jan. 10 and was accompanied home by Mrs. Sterling who was her guest at the Light for a few days.

Good Timers met Tuesday with Mrs. Myra Robertson of Portland. All members were present and also two guests. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Martha Sterling at the Light.

Popham Beach

We will try to write some news after an absence of several weeks. There seems to have been plenty of things happening recently but no time to write about them.

Clifton S. Morong has entered the Coast Guard service and is stationed at Popham Beach.

There was quite a storm here last Tuesday with rain, snow and wind prevailing. The surf at high tide came over the bridge leading to the Light. Clifton and George Morong worked at Silver Lake all day harvesting ice and got soaked. It was certainly no day to work out of doors.

Mrs. Clifton S. Morong and son Robert have moved to Popham Beach and are staying with Keeper and Mrs. Morong for the present.

Capt. Rollo Morton of the Kennebec River Coast Guard Station was a caller Thursday at the Light.

Leman Drake, a surman at the Coast Guard Station recently visited with Keeper Morong.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Morong and three children of Otisfield and Mrs. Harold Thayer of Lisbon Falls were dinner guests Monday of Mrs. Alonzo Morong. They stopped at the Bath Memorial Hospital on their return home to call on Keeper Morong and found him resting comfortably. Mrs. Alonzo Morong and son George motored to Bath Sunday to see Keeper Morong.

Substitute Keeper George Morong was able to stop the fog bell Wednesday after it had been going steady since Monday morning. A heavy rain-storm that day took the place of the fog.

A recent storm damaged the keeper's dwelling at Seguin Light and a few carpenters from Bath went out to the island to make repairs.

Capt. Rollo Morton of the Coast Guard Station returned Wednesday from a 48-hour leave which he passed at his home in Saco.

George Morong was a Bath visitor Wednesday, going up for supplies and to visit his father at the hospital.

Keeper Alonzo Morong of Fort Popham Light has been confined to his bed since before Christmas and was taken Jan. 4 to Bath Memorial Hospital where he received treatment. We certainly miss him here at the station and hope for a good recovery and return. He has been very faithful in the performance of his duty, this being the first time he has had to leave this station on account of illness. His son George is substituting for the present.

Seguin Light

We wish to express our appreciation of the Christmas package which the LaTouraine plane dropped at our door, also the gifts sent by the Sea Coast Missionary Society. The contents were enjoyed by all.

The gale of Dec. 28 tore the chimney and roof off the keeper's kitchen and did a great deal of minor damage.

Keeper Urquhart returned Dec. 30 from 15-days leave which he spent in West Jonesport. He stayed at Popham Beach over night as he was unable to reach the island.

The lighthouse tender Hibiscus stopped here Jan. 3. Supt. Brush and Assistant Supt. Sampson came ashore to look over the damages done by the storm. Hanford Miller and Howard Colbreth, government carpenters, remained here to make the necessary repairs.

Nancy and "Mickey" Connors received honorable mention awards in the recent Sears, Roebuck contest.

Assistant Keepers Connors and Witty were in Bath the first of the month for provisions.

Keeper Urquhart and Howard Colbreth recently went to Bath and were unable to return that night on ac-

GRANGERS PLEASED

With Double Installation Ceremonies—An Interesting Program

The installation of the officers of Limerock Valley Pomona Grange and those of Penobscot View Grange were held at the hall of the latter Grange at Glencove last Saturday night, at the monthly meeting of Pomona Grange. Deputy James Dornan was the installing officer, assisted by Mrs. Dornan, Mrs. Maude Payson, Miss Celia Davis and Mrs. Helen Gordon. The ceremony was done very impressively. These Pomona officers were installed:

Master, Mrs. Sara Young; overseer, Willis Young; steward, Edward M. Tolman; lecturer, Mrs. Leona Risteen; chaplain, Mrs. Eunice Morse; treasurer, Charles Wooster; secretary, Scott A. Rackliff; assistant steward, Joseph Le Blanc; lady assistant, Eleanor Phinney; Ceres, Mrs. Sadie Wooster; Pomona, Mrs. Martha Gross; Flora, Mrs. Elizabeth Morton; gatekeeper, Fred Hall; member of executive committee, N. B. Hopkins.

Officers installed by Penobscot View Grange were: Master, Lloyd Richardson; overseer, Karl Packard; steward, Charles L. Gregory; lecturer, Mrs. Lizzie Smith; chaplain, Mrs. Inez Packard; treasurer, Mrs. Golden Munroe; secretary, Miss Helen Merry; assistant steward, William Clinton; lady assistant, Mrs. William Clinton; Ceres, Mrs. Minnie Miles; Pomona, Mrs. Nellie Hall; Flora, Mrs. Lizzie Morton; member of executive committee, Frank Richardson.

At the afternoon session the visiting speaker was William A. Wheeler, representative of the Maine Central Railroad, who spoke of the problems presented by the heavy motor trucks with their destructive effect on the road and their unfair competition with the railroads. The speaker to some length described the streamlined trains soon to be used on the Maine railroads.

Elisha W. Pike gave an able address on the outlook for the year as compared with that of a year ago. Past State Master Obadiah Gardner spoke on "Important Events of the Past Year" and was followed in the round table by Frank H. Ingraham, Deputy James Dornan and several others.

Remarks were made by Sister Arethusa Packard of Glencove who is in her 97th year, and Col. F. S. Philbrick who is not exactly in his youth.

Under the able direction of Stephen Gushue, Camden talent presented a dramatic sketch. Jokes were read by Mrs. Lizzie Smith and a poem recited by Sister Minnie Miles. All agree that it was a very pleasant Pomona meeting.

MAINE SCHOOL OF COMMERCE

Director Mrs. Lena K. Sargent is substituting at Old Orchard High School during the absence of Miss Katherine Galley, commercial instructor.

Miss Esther Harjula, passed the weekend with her mother Mrs. Ida Harjula, of Georges River Road, Thomaston.

Principal H. Leroy Caston will address the Commercial Club at Thornton Academy, Saco Jan. 29, on the "Work of a Commercial College."

Miss Helen Stein was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Stein over the weekend.

Arthur Hart has returned after passing the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Hart, South Hope.

Miss Helen Stein and Esther Harjula of Rockland have passed their official Gregg 60 and 80 word tests in Shorthand. Miss Ida Wincapaw of Waldoboro has passed her official 60-word test.

Dr. and Mrs. E. W. Peaslee of Rockland were weekend callers at the Portland Maine School of Commerce.

H. Leroy Caston of the Voice and Diction Department of the school announces the forthcoming production of three one-act plays to be given this semester.

count of unfavorable weather. They remained at Popham Beach and returned the following day.

Pond Island

It is cold, stormy and rough here so far this year, and I haven't been ashore for some time.

Thanks to the flying Santa Claus, Capt. Wincapaw and also to Mr. Bird for the Christmas package. It dropped in a gully, and the dog Arde finding it, watched over it until I returned from the beach.

Appreciation is expressed to the Sea Coast Missionary Society for their fine Christmas gift.

Keeper Morong of Fort Popham Light is very ill and is at the hospital.

Good luck to all Keepers and Coast Guardsmen along the coast.

Realm of Music

By Gladys St. Clair Morgan

In the December issue of the Peabody (Conservatory) Bulletin is a telling article on "Why Study Abroad?" written by Irmgard Hutcheson. Space permits a few of the pithy remarks.

"Our possibilities of hearing beautiful performances of masterpieces in every branch of music are not equalled anywhere abroad. It is difficult to refrain from superlatives in talking of American orchestra, of their leaders, of the wealth of recitals all over the country by visiting and American artists, and of some of the programs offered us over the air. The great masters to whom we went in Europe are, with very few exceptions, now living in this country. Our American conservatories today are equipped to give us thorough and comprehensive musical training as any European school. When recently exchange fellowships were arranged between the best known German school of music and an American one, both students sent abroad from here were engaged within a few months for leading parts at the Berlin State Opera, positions which they are holding at the present moment. Surely a telling tribute to American training!"

"The will-o'-the-wisp chase after foreign names has been the cause of countless tragedies among American talent. At the time when the young artist is most impressionable, we send him to a strange continent, not for a period of months, which would be a broadening experience of great value, but for years; often at a stage when he ought to be making connections and starting to earn his living in his native country. He is usually supported during his stay in Europe by well-meaning but ill-advised American friends. It has always been a riddle to me why the same people who are willing to pour thousands into the support of a young student in Europe are unwilling to pay a modest sum to help gain a foothold here. After this life abroad under unnatural conditions the young student returns to his country, often quite out of sympathy with the conditions which he finds here, and unable to contend with them. All this waste of human happiness and human material is the result of our foolish prejudice in favor of European training. And yet no one who is in touch with conditions in this country and abroad could deny that musically at least there is nothing that the student can not acquire just as well in the United States.

"Let us have done with our undignified and above all untrue insistence on American musical inferiority, and wake up to a realization of our position—that of one of the world's greatest cultural powers."

Walter Mills writes: "I am sailing for Mexico City to sing at the British American Embassy. Please let my Maine friends know of this. Also I am guest tomorrow at the Rubinstein Club—the Chapmans, you know." Mr. Mills is having a very active season and seems happy in his work.

His letter contained a review of Doris Doe's recent New York recital which will interest those who have met Miss Doe and are following her career in music.

"The American wing of the Metropolitan opera was liberally represented in the audience as well as on the stage when Doris Doe, the Brangane and Fricka of some of Mr. Gatti-Casazza's Wagner casts, reappeared in recital in the Town Hall last night. Participating in the applause also were some of the foreign artists of the company, colleagues of the Anna of the recent revival of Strauss's "Rosenkavalier". Flowers were added to plaudits and the singer responded with repetitions and several extensions of her program. Some first performances of work still in manuscript were among Miss Doe's contributions to the recital season, and other contemporaneous life by Guion, Carpenter and Ernest Charles were presented in this group. Several of the composers were present to share in the audience's cordial recognition of their handwork. Miss Doe restored to currency four airs by Erich Wolf, the gifted Viennese song writer and accompanist who died in New York in 1913 while on a concert tour with Julia Culp. These examples of the Lied were of a prevailingly lyric character and presented something less than the widest range of expressiveness both in content and delivery. Apart from some breathlessness in her lowest tones and a tendency to roop in wide intervals, Miss Doe used her full-toned contralto smoothly and tastefully. Hers was singing of a conscientious quest of the poetic spirit of the song, if not always completely successful in communicating it."

The Metropolitan Opera Association will give the world premiere of the new one-act opera. In the Pasha's Garden by John Laurence Seymour, American composer, at a benefit matinee for the Southern Women's Educational Alliance Jan. 24. It will share a double bill with La Boheme. Lawrence Tibbett will have the title role and Helen Jepson, soprano, will make her Metropolitan debut as the Pasha's wife.

Gerry Farrar, the lady-o, talks opey on the radio. She'd better keep the stories clean. For she gets pay from Listerine.

Dr. Walter Damrosch, white-haired dean of American maestri, will celebrate his 50th anniversary as a conductor of opera and concerts next month. As an observance, plans are being made for a special performance at the Metropolitan Opera of Richard Wagner's "Die Meistersingers," under Dr. Damrosch's direction. It was on the night of Feb. 11, 1884, that Dr. Damrosch made his debut as a conductor. That was at the Metropolitan. That Feb. 11 Dr. Leopold Damrosch, father of Walter, who was conducting German operas as a part of the standard repertoire, was too ill to conduct, so his son was suddenly called to the podium. The opera was Wagner's "Tannhauser". Four days later the father died, and the son was selected to succeed him as conductor of German opera.

GEORGES RIVER ROAD

The serious illness of Mr. Autio of Friendship who is at Knox Hospital, is learned with regret.

Arthur Harjula left Monday for Quincy, Mass., and was accompanied as far as Portland by Misses Helen Stein and Esther Harjula, students at Maine School of Commerce, who spent the weekend with their parents, Mrs. Sarah Stein of Long Cove and Mrs. Ida Harjula of this place.

The Jolly Trollers, local girls' 4-H Club held a meeting Jan. 4 at the home of Mrs. Fred Anderson, assistant leader. Mrs. Ellen Nelson, leader, and all members except one were present. Record sheets were given out and projects discussed. The next meeting will be Feb. 5 at the home of Laila Rankonen.

A surprise party in honor of her

New Opera Career for Farrar

Her reign on the operatic stage over, Geraldine Farrar has moved across the footlights at the Metropolitan Opera House to start a new career from a microphone equipped box in the Grand Tier.

STARTING a new career in mid-life—that's the inspiring example for American womanhood set by Geraldine Farrar. Thirty-three years ago, as a girl of nineteen, Geraldine Farrar sang her first opera performance at the Royal Opera House in Berlin. Shortly after that she made the startling announcement that she would retire from the operatic stage when she was forty and from concert when she was fifty.

Twelve years ago last spring she stood on the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House in New York in the heyday of her beauty and glory and sang her farewell—while the audience stood and cheered through its tears. Ten years later, true to her 30-year-old promise, she gave up concert appearances.

But now, as radio raconteuse of the Metropolitan Opera broadcasts birthday anniversary was given recently to Mrs. Toivo Hakala at her home on Columbia avenue, Rockland. Games and singing were enjoyed and refreshments, including a birthday cake, made by Mrs. Hakala's sister, Mrs. Charles Pirainen, were served.

The occasion was also observed as a christening of the infant daughter, Marjorie, of Mrs. Martha Nelson, being christened by Rev. John F. Heino. Mrs. Nelson who is a sister to Mrs. Hakala, makes her home in San Francisco, Calif. Those present were: Rev. and Mrs. John F. Heino, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Rivers, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Maki, Mr. and Mrs. William Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Laine, Mrs. Eino Lehto and daughter Helmi, Mrs. Lyddie, Mrs. Lena Dow, Miss Gertrude Makinen, Mrs. John Stein, Eino Maki, Nestor Maki, Julius Tarvainen and son, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pirainen and son, Mr. and Mrs. Martha Nelson and daughter, Mrs. Edwin Stein and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Toivo Hakala.
